About Hutchison House

Hutchinson House - located in downtown Peterborough, Ontario - is a museum offering a glimpse of life in Ontario in the 1800s. An estimated 5,000 people visit the museum each year for guided tours and other special events, including Scottish Tea and Hogmanay.

It was built in 1837 for Dr. John Hutchinson, one of the earliest doctors in Peterborough as a way to keep the doctor in town. It was the first home in Canada to John's cousin, Sir Sandford Fleming, both of whom are from Kirkcaldy Scotland.
